

Girl's Profile: Thy Seavmey

Thy Seavmey is twelve years old and she studies in sixth grade at the Lotus School in Tbong Damrei village, Kampong Chamlong commune, Kampong Chamlong district, Kandal province.

Seavmey has a little sister. Her parents are farmers who own 0.2 hectare of farmland for transplanting rice. Her parent could grow the rice only one time per year because the water is limited and far away from the field. One year they can harvest only about 6 sacks of rice's production and a quantity of one sack of rice is about 70 Kilogram 70 kilograms. After gathering rice is completely finished, her father just stayed at home and looks after his cows and he goes fishing in the lake for food and earns some money from this to support his family.

In Seavmey's free time she likes doing housework, homework and exercises, look after her little sister, and looking the animals at the field. When she grows up she want to be a teacher at primary school near her house because she loves to share her knowledge and experience to young children and earn money to support her family.
